INT. AVERYS STAIRS - EARLY MORNING

LUGGAGE rolls, BANGS on the stairs. Thud! Screech!

KYLE (O.S.)
Pick it up and get going.

INT. AVERYS STAIRS - FOYER

The FOYER of the AVERYS house is a standard looking box with a CLOSET, STAIRWELL, and GAUDY DECORATIONS.

PATRICK (10 yrs, boy) half-asleep looks up to KYLE (40s, father) who is directing his kids forward like a sailor on an AIR CRAFT CARRIER.

KYLE
Everyone has to carry their own luggage. If it's too heavy, then put something back. We hit the road in ten minutes.

Kyle moves into the hallway to SEARCH for his last child.
Patrick turns and from his father towards the STAIRS.

PATRICK
Eighteen up. Eighteen down. Easier to cut my losses and go to the van.

Patrick turns and exits the FOYER into the 5 am darkness.

EXT. AVERYS PORCH AND FRONT YARD - EARLY MORNING

The 5 AM MOON hangs in the sky. STREETLIGHTS are on. Patrick slowly moves towards the VAN in the driveway.

ALICIA (O.S.)
[yawn]

Patrick stops and corners his ALICIA (14 yrs, girl, blue pajamas) breeze past him.

PATRICK
That sounds pleasant at five in the morning-

Alicia continues walking.

ALICIA
Nothing is pleasant before the sun's up. I don't do well in the morning. Or the afternoon.
(MORE)

ALICIA (CONT'D)
Or the evening. Frankly, sleeping is when I peak.

Patrick glances back at Kyle locking the door. Kyle double checks each lock.

INTO VIEW: Alicia stares at the open van door. She struggles to lift her luggage. She glances up to see MASON (15yrs, boy) sitting in the middle seat staring, SMILING at his sister. He doesn't move.

ALICIA (V.O.)
You're not helpful.

Alicia wheels her luggage to the back of the van, leaves it for Kyle, then returns to the side of the van. She steps inside as Mason returns himself to be under a blanket with headphones over his head. Alicia moves to open back seat. She settles in as her luggage get DROPPED to her side.

ALICIA
You could have helped me. Fine! Be that way!

Rachel from the front passenger seat, turns to see Alicia.

RACHEL
What'd you say dear?

ALICIA
Nothing mom. Just talking to myself.

Alicia leans back as a second piece of luggage is dropped onto her head. The REAR van door is shut. She notices Patrick take his seat as Kyle moves aside the van to the drivers seat.

ANGLE ON: Kyle quickly gets set. He checks his rear-view mirror.

KYLE
(inside voice)
One kid. Two kid. Three kid.
(glancing at his wife)

RACHEL Finish that thought. It'll be your last.

Rachel inhales the FRENCH VANILLA LATTE. She enjoys the peace.

RACHEL (CONT'D)
I gave the bathroom speech.

KYLE
Good. I want to make the Mason-Dixon before we stop anywhere.

RACHEL
I'm hoping for Virginia. Patrick is set with his game. Mason has a growth on his head so I guess he's fine. Alicia! How are you?

ANGLE ON (OTS): Alicia smiles at her mom as she digs MICHAEL'S BASEBALL CAP out of the bag.

ALICIA
I've got the yawns. Aside from that I'm good. Got a grab bag of snacks with me.

KYLE
Alright kids. Destination Savannah or bust.

Kyle drives the van OFF the driveway. Alicia glances out the window, sees a GOLF TEE MAILBOX.

ALICIA (V.O.)
Michael's sister to the rescue. He won't be needing this all Summer.

Alicia glances down at the hand twisting in her hand.

ALICIA (V.O.) (CONT'D)
Ha, county will be telling you where you can be in the Summer. Time to say good night to my roadies and get some sleep because I've got some mind traveling to do.

INT. COURT OF COMMON PLEAS, YORK COUNTY, PA - MORNING

A COURT HOUSE with wooden beams like a barn; more paintings than a museum; and marble walls. The room is FULL of ATTORNEYS, PARENTS, and the VANDALS.

MICHAEL (14yrs, suit and tie) sits on a bench. LIZ (14yrs, dressed for success) is staring at her phone. Daniel (14 yrs, jeans and button top) is staring at the ceiling. TRAVIS NOBLE (14 yrs, suit) is leaning against a wall. CHARLES (16 yrs, suit) is pacing the room.

ALICIA (V.O.)

This place is a little spiffier than I thought it'd be. I figured there'd be jail cells, men in zebra print uniforms with handcuffs and dogs in police uniforms keeping the peace. Guess the law isn't everything it's cracked up to be.

DANIEL

(to his sister)

I never thought we'd get turned in.
It was the perfect plan. Only a few people knew. We all agreed not to say anything. Who knew it was gonna go wrong?

MICHAEL

None of us did.

ALICIA (V.O.)

You should have thought it was possible.

MICHAEL

Guess it could be worse. We could be in jail or juvenile hall, which according to the internet is basically the same thing.

Charles paces, glancing from vandal to vandal. His face is red with anger.

CHARLES

We could also be free. Perhaps if you had told me what you were doing, I wouldn't be here.

Charles speaks with his hands, flailing them into the air and flinging them around as he paints a picture in mid-air.

CHARLES (CONT'D)

I mean, look at yourself Travis. You took bars of soap and wrote Edgar Allen Poe stories on the school windows.

EVERYONE in ear-shot chuckles at Charles proclamation.

CHARLES (CONT'D)

Oh Romeo, my fair Romeo! Why arst thou at the Principal's window?

TRAVIS

That's Shakespeare, not Poe.

CHARLES

Does it matter? We-

(pause)

- no you got caught. And now I'm here! It's eight in the morning on a Summer day when we don't have school. I should be sleeping right now.

CLOSE ON: Michael glances down at the hat in his hands then he turns towards Liz who is still staring at her phone.

MICHAEL

Hey president, how'd you get...Did you figure out why your mom turned us in?

ALICIA

Liz looks bitter. I wouldn't bother her if I was you; I'm not, but I am in your mind so I don't really want to watch you die. Oh, there's a 3 on her face now. Good! I hope the judge throws the book at all of you. Hope it's a heavy book too, like an encyclopedia series!

LIZ

I asked my mom. She just stood there smiling, shrugging her shoulders and went back to watching television. No explanation. Just a cold shoulder.

CHARLES

At-least your dad isn't a cop. I'll be hearing about this one forever. You gave me money and a list. How was I to know what the four of you would be doing? Did you not think you might get caught vandalizing the school?

LIZ

Thought about it. Thinking about it more now that we did get caught. But what did you think the order of soap, toilet paper and forks were going to be used for? Didn't you learn to think in high school?

DANIEL

He's only in his second year-

TRAVIS

-Sounds like he might need to repeat it. I told you Alicia knew. Everyone knows who we are.

MICHAEL

Everyone did know. It was online.

A moment of silence, then Charles notices Daniel is making a mess at the water fountain.

CHARLES

Why did you just splash so much water on your face? Or any water for that matter?

CLOSE ON: Daniel has water dripping down his face as he wipes the water with his sleeve.

DANIEL

Sympathy. If the judge sees me crying maybe, he'll be lenient. I don't want to lose my Summer just because of a prank. That would be unreasonable.

TRAVIS

Chuck! It's like Liz said. What'd you think Michael needed sixteen rolls of toilet paper at one time?

ALICIA (V.O.)

Sixteen rolls equals vandalism or a medical emergency. Don't want to be on the end of either of those options. Enjoy your Summer boys, girls and Chuck! Mine is heading South for greener pastures.

INT. AVERYS VAN - NOON

Patrick glances up from his video game. He notices Mason and Alicia asleep. He looks out the window of the VAN on the highway to see the BLUE RIDGE MOUNTAINS.

PATRICK

There are lots of trees out here.

Kyle steadies himself in the seat. He smiles and checks the rearview mirror to see Patrick.

KYLE
We're in the Blue Ridge Mountains. They run for over a hundred miles.

PATRICK Trees don't look blue. They're as green as the ones back home.

KYLE
If you squint your eyes-

RACHEL
-Dear.

PATRICK
Dad, are we there yet?

Kyle smiles an 8. He taps his fingers as the sound of a FIDDLE AND BRASS band PLAYS through the speakers. Kyle turns up the volume to DROWN out his son.

INT. AVERYS VAN - AFTERNOON

Patrick stares out the window to see the VAN crossing a low bridge over a CAROLINA SWAMP.

PATRICK
Dad?

Kyle ignores the question.

RACHEL
Yes, dear.

PATRICK
How many hours is the drive to Savannah?

RACHEL Eleven.

PATRICK
So, we're not there yet are we?

RACHEL
No dear, we're not there yet.

Rachel looks at her husband who is SHOWING his STRESS. She turns the radio dial to the sound of a duel between a PIANO AND VIOLIN.

INT. AVERYS VAN - EVENING

SIGN "WELCOME TO GEORGIA is aside the highway. Patrick stares to the ceiling of the van.

PATRICK

Dad?

KYLE

No. We are not there yet. No. I don't know how long it'll be. No. I don't have more food.

PATRICK

I gotta pee.

RACHEL

Next exit is three miles. Hold it till then.

Patrick listens to the GOSPEL song on the radio as he sees a GEORGIA PEACH ORCHARD aside the highway.

EXT. BARON ROADWAY - LATER AFTERNOON

ANGLE UP: Staring into the SPANISH MOSS hanging from a MAGNOLIA TREE in SAVANNAH in JUNE. The humidity is visible in the air. ASIDE the roadway, a sidewalk meets a tall STONE WALL.

Kyle's FINGERTIPS run along the YELLOW SPECKS of POLLEN that covered the wall grout. He smiles at he meets and ORNATE BLACK GATE. Looking right, he sees ALICIA failing to walk off a leg that is asleep while pulling her SUITCASE and carrying her DUFFLE BAG; Patrick is turning in circles; and Mason approaches his position with sweat on his BROW. He stares past the gate to the LARGE SOUTHERN HOME, HALF STAIRS that lead to a RAISED CIRCULAR PORCH and FRONT DOOR.

KYLE

(mumbling)

Yeah, this house is bigger than ours. We can fit two houses in this one home.

MASON

Nope!

(laughing)

I don't know what you're mumbling. But nope is the answer. Just putting my two cents into the conversation. Make it worth something.

Rachel laughs as she passes Kyle and turns into the open GATE held by Mason. She takes in the view of the garden to LEFT. A garden with a RED STRIPED LIGHTHOUSE, TALL SUNFLOWERS, and a BLUE HOUSE (1800s, pitched roof with Attic window).

ANGLE ON: Rachel steps up the circular steps to the front door. She looks back as her kids WANDER up and KYLE wanders away from the front door. She waits for the kids, then rings the doorbell. RING. RING. RING.

A moment passes.

The front door swings open, revealing a foyer with fourteen feet high ceilings, crown molding and a special sweet smell that all the AVERYS INHALE.

INTO VIEW: DAPHNE (14 yrs, 5'2", niece to Rachel) stands in the doorway with an SMILE.

DAPHNE

Welcome to Savannah! Come on in.
Mum is making a treat for you to finish the drive. I'd recommend taste testing the chocolate covered strawberries. I picked them from the garden yesterday. The strawberries, not the chocolate which came from the store.

JOLENE (O.S.)

Down the hall to the right!

RACHEL

Love the place-

Rachel gets a HUG from Daphne then continues down the hall way. Daphne turns to Mason, then Patrick, then Mason.

DAPHNE

Boys. Bathroom down the hall and another upstairs, second door on left.

Patrick and Mason bolt past their cousin with Patrick running the hallway and Mason running up the stairs. Daphne turns to Alicia.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

Hug?

ALICIA

Of course.

Alicia and Daphne hug, step back.

DAPHNE
I'll take one.

Alicia hands her duffle back to Daphne, while she drags her suit case into the house.

INT. BARON HOUSE - FOYER WITH STAIRS - CONTINUOUS

Daphne leads Alicia up the stairs.

 DAPHNE
Ready to spend a whole week in Savannah?

 ALICIA
Yes! I was planning for so many things to do and see then I got overwhelmed, threw the list in the trash and figured I'd wing it.

 DAPHNE
Mum's got a plan.

 ALICIA
Thank god. I have no idea where anything is in this city. I looked at a map, but I couldn't tell the difference between a compass rose and a tulip.

 DAPHNE
Shouldn't you have learned that in class.

Alicia shakes her head in agreement. The two continue forward down the empty hallway. The first door on the right is open to Daphne's room.

INT. BARON HOUSE - DAPHNE'S ROOM - CONTINUOUS

Alicia enters the room as she stares at door PICTURE of a CORGI with a CROWN. She looks at the room and FREEZES. It's a LEVEL 5 DISASTER ZONE with clothes, dinner plates and a mess in the room.

INT. BARON HOUSE - KITCHEN - CONTINUOUS

The KITCHEN is set in the theme of a LEMON and only LEMON. The island has plates of Lemon Meringue Pie, Lemon Mints, and Lemon Loaf with a pitcher of LEMONADE.

JOLENE (late 30s, Rachel's sister) chats with Rachel and Kyle.

JOLENE
How's the drive down?

RACHEL
I slept most of the way.
(popping a lemon mints) Kyle drove eleven hours. Only a few more hours till were in Orlando.

JOLENE
That's a good way to drive. Kyle-

Kyle is overfilling a plate.

KYLE
Jolene?

JOLENE
You going to leave any for me?

KYLE
I need fuel for the drive.

PATRICK (O.S.)
So do I.

Patrick stands at the island between the adults. He peers at the options, considers the BEST OPTION then takes Kyle's full plate and walks away.

PATRICK (CONT'D)
Thanks for the plate date.

RACHEL Son.
(pauses for reaction)
Give your Aunt Jolene a hug, then we need to leave. I want to check in before dark.

Patrick turns around, steadies his plate, then gives his Aunt Jolene a big hug. As he hugs, Jolene and Kyle take from Patrick's plate. He doesn't notice the theft. As Patrick leaves the room -

RACHEL (CONT'D)
Tell Mason it is time to go.

ANGLE ON (OTS): Jolene stares down the hallway as Mason meets Patrick at the stairs.

JOLENE
(loudly) Try to get in trouble boys. It'll make for better stories.

Rachel's glare to her sister is one for the ages. The silence is broken with a HUG between Jolene and Rachel.

CLOSE ON: Rachel and Jolene hug.

JOLENE (CONT'D)
How about I keep Alicia? Only for the Summer. I'll bring her back when Daphne goes North.

RACHEL Does Daphne know yet?

JOLENE
No. Eli and I are waiting till you leave. It will be easier.

Jolene walks Rachel out as Kyle, Mason and Patrick exit the front door.

EXT. BARON - FRONT PORCH - CONTINUOUS

Rachel sees Patrick examining the garden lighthouse and the GNOME. Mason and Kyle are at the black gate.

JOLENE
Are you going to say goodbye to Alicia?

RACHEL
(shaking her head 'no') I'll send her a text message. She's better at responding to her phone than she is at responding to people in real life.

JOLENE
Eli offer Daphne walkie-talkie rather than a phone. That conversation crashed and burned.

RACHEL
I can imagine. I'll call you when we get there.

Rachel walks by herself down the steps. She continues towards the black gate where Kyle stands staring at Patrick.

KYLE Patrick! The train's leaving with or without you!

Kyle holds the gate open for Rachel and waits for an approaching Patrick.

KYLE (CONT'D)
Did you defeat the gnome?

PATRICK
I don't want to talk about it. You wouldn't understand its power.

Kyle follows Patrick through the gate. He turns, closes the black gate, then exits stage right for DRAMA.

INT. BARON HOUSE - DAPHNE'S ROOM - CONTINUOUS

Buzz! Buzz! Buzz! Buzz!

CLOSE ON: Alicia's phone buzzes on the table-top.

Alicia picks the phone up, swipes her password then drops her shoulders in disgust at the sight of the book on her phone.

ALICIA
Why she sends me something this long, I won't understand. I don't have the attention span.

Alicia types a quick response then sets the phone down. With Daphne cloths into her hamper, Alicia takes in her surroundings.

IMAGE CUT: Flanking the trundle bed on each side is a series of articles and photos, pictures of ghosts and ghouls for HALLOWEEN.

ANGLE ON: Alicia steps closer to a poster hanging on the front of the closet door. IMAGE: A MORBID sight of a haunted house with crypts, skeletons and black crows that change color with a drop in temperature.

ALICIA (CONT'D)
All Hollows Eve.
(shrugging off the scary)
I like ghost stories, but not on my wall

Daphne is sitting on her bed.

DAPHNE

It's Halloween the whole year down here. It's said in the 'City of Savannah, Resting in Peace is an Option, Not a Guarantee.' One reason why I insist on living here. Plus, I can't afford to move out. My allowance barely buys me shoes and I don't want to get a job.

ALICIA

Mine doesn't go far? If there's so much scary here, can we take a tour?

Daphne ignores the question as she rummages through PAPERS and PICTURES on her desk. She grabs a tinged-yellow picture of her HOUSE.

DAPHNE

We can ask mum about a tour?

Daphne holds up the photo for Alicia to see.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

Found this when we moved in.

Daphne hand the picture to Alicia

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

Since you're staying here, you should probably know, we have doors that open without wind; lights flicker without a storm; and I've heard conversations behind me when I know no one else is in the room. That's just a few things that go on in this wonderful place.

ALICIA

This place is haunted?

DAPHNE

Well-

ALICIA (V.O.)

It's a Yes or No.

DAPHNE

See Mr. D's blue house. Notice the attic's small twin windows on the blue house out my window.

(MORE)

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

When the moonlight is just right and my vision is a little wrong, I can see something in the window.
Sometimes it waves back at me.

ALICIA

Well, that's creepy. Mr. D doesn't sound like a good neighbor if he's letting ghosts live in the attic.

KNOCK! KNOCK! KNOCK!

Jolene peeks her head into the Daphne's room.

JOLENE

You girls ready to get going. We've got a dinner date tonight with just the three of us.

(winking at Alicia)

I'm starting your week off right with some good Southern Comfort. By comfort, I mean a meal from a restaurant that cooks for me, not me cook for someone else.

Jolene leads the girls out of the room and into the hallway.

INT. AVERYS VAN - EARLY EVENING

Buzz! Buzz! Buzz! Buzz!

Rachel picks up her phone.

RACHEL

Alicia sent a text.

Rachel slides the MESSAGE app open. The screen displays: Are we there yet? Rachel exhales with a laugh.

RACHEL (CONT'D)

Dad. Alicia wants to know are we there yet?

PATRICK (O.S.)

It wasn't me this time.

Rachel corners her eye to see Patrick laughing and Mason asleep.

EXT. SAVANNAH STREETS - EVENING

IMAGE: Walk! Walk! Walk! The sound of the crossing sign blares in the distance.

Jolene leads Alicia and Daphne through the CROSSWALK towards the other side of the BUSY road. Jolene starts to hustle.

JOLENE

Let's get going. Time's ticking.

Alicia pursues her aunt. She looks up to see a sign. Bay Street. Alicia steps onto the curb and follows Jolene. As her feet pound the pavement, she glances up to see SPANISH MOSS on a tree.

ALICIA

Why does the moss in the trees look like giant spider webs? I asked my dad, but he really didn't know.

JOLENE

It's Spanish Moss.

ALICIA

What makes it Spanish?

Jolene and Daphne look at the others blank stare. They pass houses as SILENCE fills the air. A glance across the street as they pass: an ornate wine shop with banners blowing in the wind; a souvenir store whose facade is twenty shades of red; and a store display of a rainbow of colors and pictures showing dancers in acrobatic poses. The header: 'Savannah Dance: A Sleight of Hand'

Ext. Savannah Streets - Riverwalk Stairs - Continuous

At the end of the storefront, Jolene glances up at the FOUR-STORY RED BUILDING, then she turns, grasps the iron stair rail, overcomes her vertigo and descends towards black cobble-stone street.

JOLENE

How are you ladies doing?

Daphne is just behind Jolene with Alicia in short tow.

DAPHNE

My feet are a little sore. I think I need new shoes.

JOLENE

Have you even worn those before? I don't remember seeing them.

DAPHNE

First time I've worn them, but I would like new shoes, preferably a wood sole with red sides and a white top.

Jolene's shoulders drop as she steps onto the COBBLESTONE STREET. She smirks at her Daphne who is enjoying the SPOTLIGHT. Alicia points past Daphne.

ALICIA

Is that the river?

Angle On (OTS): Alicia stares at a stretch of water, two miles wide in the distance. INTO VIEW: A large cargo ship, sailing with containers a hundred feet high plows up the river.

ALICIA (CONT'D)

Can we get closer?

JOLENE

Once we're down the pathway, we'll have a better view. We're around the corner and down the way. The red building is my favorite on the riverfront. I don't exactly know why?

DAPHNE

It has two shoe stores! The 'Shoe Horn' and the 'Carpenter Ant Store.'

Jolene turns the CORNER of the building, crossing the trolley tracks so that she and the girls will avoid being run-over by a small USPS GOLF CART. Daphne takes the role of TOUR GUIDE as she presents each store along the RIVERWALK.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

The big buildings on the other side are part of the convention center. It's been here longer than we have so I know it's at-least four years old. Down river, the tug boats guide the container ships from Fort Pulaski upriver to the shipyard which is, if you turn your head left, all the way up the river about two miles. Just keep swimming past the bridge and you'll get there.

ALICIA (V.O.)
 Woohoo, two miles! Got something right!

Daphne POINTS UP to her left. A sign in fancy PEACH reads:
Riverfront Exchange.

DAPHNE
 we'll be eating right up there. At the Riverfront Exchange. Our seats will let you look out at the river.
 Maybe another ship will come through and we'll get to see the entire thing pass without the buildings blocking our view.

Jolene waves to the HOSTESS (20s, black outfit) who is standing at the ENTRANCE of the RIVERFRONT EXCHANGE.

ANGLE ON: Alicia glances above the restaurant to see four stories with windows. The second story has round windows. The third story has six sets of windows. The fourth story has seven sets of windows.

CLOSE ON: Jolene shooshes Daphne forward to follow the hostess who is leading into the Riverfront Exchange. Jolene peers at Alicia.

JOLENE
 Nice thing about reservations is that it's a legitimate way to skip to the front of the line.

ALICIA
 I don't usually need a legitimate reason to skip the line. Sometimes I just do it.

INT. RIVERFRONT EXCHANGE - CONTINUOUS

The hostess leads Alicia, Daphne and Jolene through the RUSTIC DECOR of a three-quarter full business. Alicia notices the pictures on the wall: black and white photographs of ships, sailors and celebrations; a wagon-wheel hangs from the ceiling above the SMALL BAR; a WHEEL set into the floor with the cardinal directions, North, South, East and West;

Alicia trails the others as she makes her way up the stairs.
 She stops mid-stairs to read a poem WRITTEN on the wall.

~Walt Whitman~

O Captain! My Captain. Our fearful trip is done;

The ship has weather'd every rack, the prize we sought is won;

The port is near, the bells I hear, the people all exulting,

While follow eyes the steady keel, the vessel grim and daring:

But O heart! Heart! Heart!

O the bleeding drops of red,

Where on the deck my Captain lies,

Fallen cold and dead.

INT. RIVERFRONT EXCHANGE - 2ND FLOOR - CONTINUOUS

Alicia stands at the TOP STEP. To her left is the GALLEY of a SHIP. The closest wall is adorned with WOOD BOARD and BLACK RIVETS the size of HALF-DOLLARS. A MURAL on the back wall displays the OCEAN and a DISTANT LIGHTHOUSE.

Alicia follows Daphne as she passes GLASS TABLES each with an ETCHED MAP. The HOSTESS stands aside a BOOTH SEAT. Alicia stops before entering as DAPHNE stares at a mural wall of the THREE-FOURTEEN (Newspaper clippings, ship splinters, wood pipes, coins and an anchor) Above the image of a ship is a night SKY that TRAVELS onto the CEILING to the words NORTH STAR.

INT. RIVERFRONT EXCHANGE - 2ND FLOOR - MOMENTS LATER

Alicia, Daphne and Jolene are sitting at their booth seats with Alicia staring out the window as a CARGO SHIP passes.

 DAPHNE (O.S.)
Are you alright?

 ALICIA
Yeah. Why do you ask?

 DAPHNE
You've spent the last few minutes just staring out the window. The food is definitely worth the wait.

 JOLENE
I guess I should have asked if you like seafood.

ALICIA

It's one of my favorites. I love cracking crab legs. As long as they're not on a living crab. That would be a bit dangerous.

JOLENE

I would think so.

Daphne is leaning down towards the place mat.

JOLENE (CONT'D)

Daphne, you've got everything memorized by now. Waitress is coming so lets look up.

The KRISTEN (20s, dressed in black, waitress) makes her way towards the table. Jolene and Daphne smile as Alicia focuses on the place mat.

ALICIA

The Three-Fourteen. That's interesting.

Kristen stands with a 10 on her face and crimson cheeks that look like the skin of a red apple.

KRISTEN

Hi. My name is Kristen. I'll be your waitress tonight. Our specials for you ladies will be our in-house Clam Chowder, placed in a Honey Wheat Bread Bowl with a side of Collard Salad. May I start with your drink orders?

JOLENE

Lemonade

DAPHNE

Strawberry lemonade on this side.

ALICIA

Same as the strawberry-

Daphne turns to Rachel.

DAPHNE

-Can I order now too? I'm getting hungry.

Jolene nods in agreement.

JOLENE

Guests go first, if she's ready?

ALICIA

May I have the Grilled Cheese and Pesto triangles for an appetizer and the Clam Chowder Soup for dinner?

KRISTEN

Great choice. How about the other young ladies?

DAPHNE

I'll take the Shrimp Scampi with Cornbread.

JOLENE

Second, the Shrimp Scampi.
(hands back menu)
Thanks for everything.

Kristen walks away from the table as Daphne turns to stare at the mural of Three Fourteen. Jolene smiles to Alicia.

JOLENE (CONT'D)

I don't know if Daphne's told you, but we've set up a few plans for the week. Tomorrow's the park, the beach is another day. We haven't a plan for each day, but I figure you and Daphne can take some time to figure out where you want to go. Be a bit spontaneous with everything.

DAPHNE

I've got a few things up my sleeve that we can do for fun. Hope you can handle it all.

Jolene glares at her mischievous daughter then a glance to Alicia.

JOLENE

You still have to tell me where you're going because I'll be going along too.

DAPHNE

Mum, you should be happy because this will keep me outside more than I would ever be. Plus, I'm not asking for money - yet.

JOLENE

Mark today on the calendar. Doubt this day will ever happen again.

ALICIA

It may.

DAPHNE

No, she knows me too well. This girl always asks for something.
Like here.

Daphne points to the place mat.

IMAGE: Tybee Island; Millions of Peaches: Georgia Peach Museum; Savannah Dance: A Sleight of Hand. In the center, written in cursive are the words "The Crew of the Three Fourteen."

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

I've gone to all these places and turned the trip on its head. Give me time and I'll solve this one.

ANGLE ON: Daphne smiles to Jolene as she recites "The Crew of the Three Fourteen from memory.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

The ship took sail, cast into the ocean on the morning of the 10th of September 1873. South towards the islands to turn North for a delivery of timber. It is said, with witness Preacher William Bane in support, the ship of the Three Fourteen crows nest like a twig; cabin boards splintered; and crew members lay cold as ice in the Riverfront Exchange.

Daphne sips her newly placed glass of Strawberry Lemonade.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

It's said the horrors of the night had caused their blood to empty and they can never rest in peace. Once a preacher tried to lay the lost souls to rest. Once a ceremony was held in celebration for the crew to move into heaven.

ALICIA (V.O.)

That sounds pretty bad.

DAPHNE

Don't be surprised if the ghosts adjust the lighting to their liking; whisper in unsuspecting ears; or rub against the back of a person's neck to watch goosebumps rise. If you feel the goosebumps grow or a cold shiver unexpectedly shake in your body, please notify the restaurant staff. We will set a seat and pour a glass of wine for the ghost that has decided to dine with you tonight.

ALICIA

Is everything in Savannah have ghosts and haunted?

JOLENE

Basically. Its makes for great stories while we eat amazing meals.

Kristen with GEORGE (18yrs, waiter) delivers meals to the table. Everything is perfect, fresh and SMELLS amazing.

INT. BARON HOUSE - STAIRS - EVENING

Daphne and Alicia are walking up the stairs to the second floor.

DAPHNE

Told you there were ghosts.
(boasting)
You didn't believe me. But I was right. We were just sitting there, talking about tomorrow, then poof!

Daphne hands take over the conversation.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

The lights go out! The room is black. I couldn't see my own hand in-front of my face! My own hand! That's what ghosts do. They float and play games. They're like puppet masters and we're in their play. Just strung up and dancing in the dark.

ALICIA

Being a little dramatic there, aren't you?

Jolene motions for Alicia to enter the room first then Daphne follows to shut the bedroom door.

INT. BARON HOUSE - DAPHNE'S ROOM - MORNING

Alicia glances from one poster of SCARY STORIES, GHOST HUNTS, and PASTEL EGG HUNTS. She peers out the window at the garden with sunflowers and a LIGHTHOUSE.

 DAPHNE (V.O.)
Were you comfortable there last night?

Alicia looks back with a smile, nods her head yes.

 ALICIA
It was nice. I won't wake up till noon. Did you just get up?

 DAPHNE
I've been up a bit, just not wanting to actually move more than I have to.

Daphne spins to sit up in bed, yawns and stretches.

 ALICIA
You have a lot more scary story stuff on your walls. I couldn't always sleep with this stuff on the wall.

Alicia points to the PASTEL EGG HUNTS poster.

 ALICIA (CONT'D)
This bunny is horrifying. Look at its teeth.

 DAPHNE
I don't get scared much.

Daphne climbs out of bed, pointing to a picture frame on the wall.

 DAPHNE (CONT'D)
t's a clipping from the 1920s about the family that used to live in this house. Apparently a few people died in the house during a police raid. I've never found any bullet holes so I'm guessing they got patched up long ago.

ALICIA (V.O.)
Why did I volunteer to stay here?

ALICIA
Nice place to live.

CLOSE ON: Daphne gets her slippers on as Alicia glances out the window.

ALICIA (CONT'D)
Some of these places look older than back on the farm. Since you like ghost stories, I bet you'd like to visit back home. Remember the cemetery and gravestones, some date back to 1723 -

Daphne starts to move towards the door.

DAPHNE
I've got to get a drink.

ALICIA
We've got a new string of raspberries, sweet as candy, but they're actually good for you! Think your mom would let you come back North with me?

Alicia recognizes the silence. She turns around to see an empty room. She shrugs her shoulders.

ALICIA (CONT'D)
I didn't hear the door open. Wonder how long I've been talking to myself? Not too long. Oh, I shouldn't answer myself. It might be an issue.

Alicia returns to peering out the window.

ALICIA (CONT'D)
That garden is smaller than ours, but the lighthouse is cool. We could use on acres. Be a few hundred miles out of place, but everything has its place.

SCREECH! The sound of the door opening. Daphne enters with two drinks in hand.

DAPHNE

I figure I'd get you something to drink. It's peach tea. Hope you like it.

ALICIA

Yeah, I'll take some. I didn't even hear you leave. I mean, I heard you say you need a drink, but forget about it. Thanks for the tea.

DAPHNE

Mum says brunch is ready. Are you ready to go down stairs?

ALICIA

I'm always ready for food. My sixth sense is knowing when food is done so that I can be first in line.

DAPHNE

Oh, we don't have lines in this house. It's a free-for-all. You make it or you miss out.

Alicia's eyes grow wide. Without hesitation, she leads Daphne towards the door.

INT. BARON HOUSE - HALLWAY - CONTINUOUS

Alicia and Daphne make their way out of the Daphne's room down the hall.

INT. BARON HOUSE - STAIRS - CONTINUOUS

Alicia and Daphne skips steps down the stairs, turn the railing towards the kitchen.

INT. BARON HOUSE - KITCHEN - CONTINUOUS

Jolene holds a plate of BISCUITS in her hand as she motions Alicia and Daphne to follow her to the breakfast nook.

INT. BARON HOUSE - BREAKFAST NOOK - CONTINUOUS

Alicia smirks at the SUNFLOWER LAMP at the center of the table. Surrounding the lamp are plates of Biscuits, Peach Marmalade, Pigs in a blanket, GRITS. The ladies take their seat. Daphne fills her plate with a variety of the food.

DAPHNE

We went up to the peach tree farm about a half hour from here and picked them ourselves.

ALICIA

There are some peach fields back home, but we mostly keep to the apple.

Jolene stares at the SHEER amount of marmalade Daphne is taking for her food.

JOLENE

That should be enough.

DAPHNE

More than enough I'd say

Daphne DABS a final touch to her plate.

JOLENE

Weatherman says it should be nice!
Make sure you dress for eighty-eight degrees and sunny!

Jolene and the girls are enjoying their meal.

DAPHNE

I've got my light blue cardigan.

ALICIA

Is it the older one from Roses? I love that store. There are so many things I didn't know that I needed.

JOLENE

My sister says you don't have room for more cloths.

ALICIA

I have my brothers' room. They wear the same thing every day. I couldn't do that.

DAPHNE

I wouldn't do that.

ALICIA

That's because we have style.

JOLENE

Just remember to keep your style in line with church this morning.

(MORE)

JOLENE (CONT'D)
 If you're good then we'll join Trevor at the park.

Jolene checks her watch.

JOLENE (CONT'D)
 We've got about fifteen minutes till we have to go so less talking and more eating.

Daphne and Alicia both JAB for the same piece of peach. They raise FORKS for a DUEL. Jolene with mouth full, starts to get up.

JOLENE (CONT'D)
 Don't poke an eye out. I don't block on my chairs.

Jolene leaves the room as Alicia and Daphne continues their duel.

EXT. SAVANNAH STREETS - TROLLEY STOP - NOON

Daphne stares up at the purple trolley sign. It's got a big bus with a person standing right in the middle of the street.

DAPHNE
 Mum. How mad would you be if I just got on the trolley and never got off? Do you think dad would be mad?

JOLENE
 We've talked about it. He'd be fine with it.

Alicia snickers at Jolene's response.

JOLENE (CONT'D)
 You two were fine all morning at church so I thought you both earned a trolley ride. Here we go ladies.
 They don't have tours like this back home Alicia.

ANGLE ON: A distant PURPLE TROLLEY (bus size) drives towards the stop. Trolley BELL is RINGING. A flashing sign on the front of the trolley notes 'Breaks Are Out!'

ALICIA
 Where is this going to take us?

DAPHNE
 Everywhere.

Daphne stands up on her tippy-toes to see the trolley from a higher perspective.

DAAPHNE (CONT'D)

In about an hour and a half, we'll get a glimpse of most everything in the city. Granted it's from a bus seat, but if there's something that's interesting, we could ask to visit it later in the week. We've got a few days of freedom.

SCREECH! The trolley STOPS.

JOLENE

I heard that.

Jolene steps back to allow any trolley passengers room to dismount without the hazard of getting stepped on. The trolley door opens, but no one exits.

A greeting from the BUS DRIVE (40s, portly man, black man). Alicia, Daphne and Jolene enter the trolley. The first person in seat one is an elderly man; his hat, a dark green with sweat stains, has 'Vietnam Veteran' across the top. A few seats to their right is a mother and her daughter. She's got a pair of glasses so big on her face that her eyes appear to be three sizes too big for her head. Alicia and Daphne takes the last seat on the left. Jolene takes the last seat on the right.

BUS DRIVER

Ladies and Gentlemen! Well, I see one gentleman! Welcome to the trolley 'Ride of Savannah!' Hold onto your hats, keep arms, legs and everything else inside the trolley. If you fall out of the trolley, I will not turn around. Nope. Not going to happen. I've got a schedule to keep and the schedule says we will keep driving. You fall out, you're walking home. I hope that you enjoy the tour of Savannah today. We've got beautiful weather, beautiful sights and beautiful people. Your driver is among those beautiful people. Let's take a tour on the best ride in town. So, pretend to buckle your seat belts because there aren't any. And off we go!

BUS DRIVER (CONT'D)

That's the Jolly Roger's House of Food. It's got more ship novelties than a museum of ship novelties. Rumor has it sailors would just come on shore to have a fight and the winners would get a free meal. Personally, I'd eat before I got there, that way if I'd lost, I wouldn't be a hungry loser.

IMAGE: Savannah City Hall

This is the northern portion of the Riverwalk. We've got the city hall right there. The shiny stuff on the tower is gold. Be nice to melt that down and add it to my paycheck. Then, oh, do you see the steps there? Just past the last step on the right is an ornament shop. Most of my ornaments for Christmas come from down those steps. The shop has got these candles that look like soup bowls that are red, green and white like a mistletoe. It smells, no lie, like a cranberry for three months in my house. Three months! No candle from the big stores lasts that long.

IMAGE: Juliette Gordon Low House

Love this place. Do you know Juliette Gordon Low? Any Low fans in the trolley? Your faces say no! In this mansion, which I've toured four times, is where Juliette was born. She's known for, drum roll please, Girl Scouts! Birthplace of the best cookies in the country! I like to consider myself a connoisseur of cookies. I'll support them every year.

ANGLE ON: Jolene PUSHES the next stop button. The trolley pulls to the side of the road and STOPS.

JOLENE

Here's our stop ladies. Look at all the mansions Alicia. The entire row of houses here have probably been around for two hundred years and are still in pristine condition. I love the porches. See the little gargoyles guarding the steps. The curves along the banisters.

Alicia peers out the window as she follows Daphne down the aisle. Daphne nods to the bus driver as she drops a TIP in the jar.

EXT. SAVANNAH STREETS - TROLLEY STOP - AFTERNOON

The trolley stop is in MANSION ROW (Old Southern Homes, Mansions). Daphne and Alicia join Jolene as they walk past the houses. Jolene huddles the girls in-front of a SALMON PAINTED MANSION. Jolene takes a picture then SENDS it to Rachel via text.

JOLENE

Alright ladies. We can cross the street and meet your brother.

Alicia, Daphne, and Jolene maneuver across the street. Alicia glances at the park: Magnolia trees, white-flowered bushes in long lines through the park.

A giant FOUNTAIN in the center. She glances up to see a trellis sign "OGLETHORPE PARK"

EXT. SAVANNAH - OGLETHORPE PARK - AFTERNOON

Jolene leads Alicia and Daphne down the winding path. Jolene scans for her Trevor.

JOLENE (CONT'D)

Does anyone see Trevor?

DAPHNE

Do I really want to see him? I always see him at home. Isn't that enough?

JOLENE

He came early with Jeremy. They wanted to show up and get us good seats.

(MORE)

JOLENE (CONT'D)

Since they saved us from getting up even earlier in the morning and walking here before church, you may want to be nicer to your brother. He could have said 'no.' Which I would have informed him meant 'yes' maam.

Jolene passes the fountain. In the distance, she sees Trevor (bright ORANGE CLOTHES). Trevor is tossing a FRISBEE to JEREMY (14 yrs, lanky, tall).

JOLENE (CONT'D)

Trevor! Jeremy!

Trevor with HEADPHONES on doesn't respond. Jeremy waves. Jolene, Alicia and Daphne get closer to the boys. An ERRANT Frisbee toss drifts towards Alicia who dodges, then impacts Daphne in the FOREHEAD.

ALICIA

(laughing)

You almost had it. Just got to use your hands not your head to catch.

Jolene turns towards the set of seats and blankets that are set in the SHADE of row of TREES. Jolene sets her purse down and picks up a WATER BOTTLE.

JOLENE

Great location Trevor. Better than sitting in our usual area.

JEREMY

Yeah. I wasn't going to sit in the sun this year. I don't like to burn or have my skin peel off like the layers of an onion. It's never really been a goal of mine. Besides, it's supposed to be windy and here we've got the trees protecting us from any major gusts. Wouldn't want any guests to be blown away. Would we?

TREVOR

Might blow Daphne out to sea.

Trevor smirks at Daphne as she rubs the Frisbee mark on his head.

DAPHNE

Jeremy, please take my brother home. I'm done with him.

JEREMY

My mom wouldn't let me keep another pet. Especially one she's known about for so many years. Besides, I've got work to do. Finishing my rocket for camp.

Alicia DROPS herself down onto the BLANKET. Alicia settles in as Daphne joins her on the blanket. As Jolene gives MONEY to the boys, Alicia takes in the park. ANGLE ON: An Amphitheater, a single WATER CART in the far CORNER, and many SMALL GROUPS of visitors.

Trevor and Jeremy leave the area. Jolene takes her seat.

DAPHNE

(glancing at Jolene)

Mum. Can I have a drink?

Jolene reaches for the cooler. Alicia holds her hair away from her face.

ALICIA

Do you have a hair clip? The wind keeps blowing my hair into my face. I'm thinking I've got to get it cut, maybe layer the ends a bit.

DAPHNE

I can see that look working for you.

Daphne pulls a hair pin from her hair. She reaches over and hands the pin to Alicia. Alicia places the clip in her hair to end the AGONY.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

It's so humid down here that my hair goes puff.

Daphne re-enacts the PUFFBALL of her HAIR. Jolene hands off the water as Alicia lays back on the blanket to enjoy the peace.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

Mum. How long till the band?

JOLENE

You've got thirty minutes.

ALICIA

Does that mean we have twenty-nine minutes to nap?

DAPHNE
I agree with that assessment.

Jolene shakes her head in amusement.

 JOLENE Go ahead ladies. Leave me here to enjoy the sun by myself. I'll enjoy.

INT. BARON HOUSE - DAPHNE'S ROOM - MORNING

ANGLE ON: Alicia glances from one poster of SCARY STORIES, GHOST HUNTS, and PASTEL EGG HUNTS. She peers out the window at the garden with sunflowers and a LIGHTHOUSE.

 DAPHNE
Were you comfortable there last night?

Alicia looks back with a smile, nods her head yes.

 ALICIA
It was nice. I won't wake up till noon. Did you just get up?

 ALICIA (V.O.)
Wow. I sound funny. Daphne must think I've got a frog in my throat.

 DAPHNE
I've been up a bit, just not wanting to actually move more than I have to.

Daphne spins to sit up in bed, yawns and stretches.

 ALICIA
You have a lot more scary story stuff on your walls. I couldn't always sleep with this stuff on the wall.

 ALICIA (CONT'D)
This bunny is horrifying. Look at its teeth.

ALICIA (V.O.)
I agree with myself. It's terrifying.

DAPHNE
I don't get scared much.

Daphne climbs out of bed, pointing to a picture frame on the wall.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)
It's a clipping from the 1920s about the family that used to live in this house. Apparently, a few people died in the house during a police raid. I've never found any bullet holes so I'm guessing they got patched up long ago.

ALICIA (V.O.)
There should be a warning sign about having ghosts as guests.

ALICIA
Nice place to live.

CLOSE ON: Daphne gets her slippers on as Alicia glances out the window.

ALICIA (V.O.)
And there I am staring out the window. The inn across the street is pretty cool. I like the colors.

Daphne starts to move towards the door.

DAPHNE
I've got to get a drink.

ALICIA
We've got a new string of raspberries-

ALICIA (V.O.)
Hey! Open the door! Daphne, you're gonna hit the door! Turn! Now!
Daphne!

Daphne walks through her bedroom door. She glances left and right in the hallway. No one is in sight.

DAPHNE
All clear. Never a doubt.

Turning to her side, she treks down the hallway then proceeds towards the steps.

ALICIA (V.O.)
I've got some doubts. You just walked through a door! A solid door! How'd? Why'd you do that?
Okay, so now we're going down the stairs.

Daphne turns the corner at the stairs then walks down the hallway.

INT. BARON HOUSE - KITCHEN - CONTINUOUS

Daphne stands at the refrigerator. Her eyes swell up with tears as she tries, unsuccessfully to cough. She starts to get a drink and pour the glass of juice.

DAPHNE
Just get a drink for you and the guest.

ALICIA (V.O.)
Everything is normal. Nothing peculiar about that. As a mind traveler, I am thoroughly impressed, but not completely impressed.

DAPHNE
It'd be nice if someone else would fill the drinks up after I use them.

ALICIA (V.O.)
Yeah, but back to walking through walls. How do you do that?

Daphne exits the kitchen with glasses in hand.

INT. BARON HOUSE - STAIRS - CONTINUOUS

Daphne makes her way up the stairs with steady hands to avoid dropping the drinks.

ALICIA (V.O.)
How do I enter minds? Well that I know, I grab a piece of something, anything, a ... hair clip.
(MORE)

ALICIA (V.O.) (CONT'D)
You know - our moms would put both of us in the looney-bin if they knew what we can do. A mind traveler and wall walker. That's a better combination than what some comic book characters have as their powers. I'll need a cool name, maybe a cape. You can be my sidekick.

ALICIA
I didn't hear the door open. Wonder how long I've been talking to myself? Not too long. Oh, I shouldn't answer myself. It might be an issue.

Alicia returns to peering out the window.

ALICIA (CONT'D)
That garden is smaller than ours, but the lighthouse is cool. We could use on acres. Be a few hundred miles out of place, but everything has its place.

SCREECH! The sound of Daphne's door opens as she enters the room.

EXT. BARON - GARDEN - AFTERNOON

With ten-minute breaks between each minute of work, Daphne and Alicia exhaust themselves in the garden. Tilling dirt and collecting sunflower seeds while WATCHING the last BATTLE between the Gnome and Frog statutes.

ALICIA (V.O.)
Ask her. If you don't ask the question, you'll just sit around and wonder about the answer. It'll be easier if you ask. What's she going to do? Become Invisible?

Alicia puts down her PINK PIG shaped watering pale. She makes her way to Daphne who is filling the bird feeders with SEEDS.

ALICIA (dull tone)
Looks really nice.

DAPHNE

Mom designed these. I mean she ordered them online and had dad put them together at home. Says it's easier that way.

Daphne glances up at an AWKWARD Alicia.

ALICIA

Okay...

Daphne takes a small step, then larger step back.

DAPHNE

You feeling alright. You're acting differently. If it's been too much time in the sun, we can go back inside. There's air conditioning and television. Nothing is ever wrong with those things.

ALICIA

Yeah. I just have a question-

DAPHNE

Ya - going ask it or -

ALICIA

- How long have you been able to walk through walls?

ALICIA (V.O.)

That may have gone nuclear. If you start crying, then I am officially the worst house guest ever! I mean in all history.

DAPHNE

I don't have an answer.

Daphne bends down to take a seat on a low set of stones. Her hands grasp at blades of grass that are just out of reach.

ALICIA

You left the room for drinks. The door didn't make a sound. I didn't hear you leave. When you came back, there was a creak in the door.

DAPHNE

If I say yes and you're right - you'd say I'm crazy. Would you really want to sit next to a crazy person?

ALICIA
No, but I'll stand next to one.

Alicia's joke misfires on every cylinder. No amusement from Daphne or response.

ALICIA (CONT'D)
I'd be happy to sit next to a person who could walk through walls. Well, can you walk through walls or not?

Daphne nods her head 'yes.'

DAPHNE
Been doing it for a few years now. Upstairs, I didn't figure you would notice if I just made it through the door and came back with some drinks.

Alicia takes a seat to listen.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)
First started my room.

INT. BARON HOUSE - DAPHNE'S ROOM - MORNING

DAPHNE (O.S.)
I put cloths away -

Daphne is putting cloths away in her closet. A shirt falls, she loses her balance and falls through the back of the closet.

DAPHNE (O.S.) (CONT'D)
Then I fell through the wall.

INT. BARON HOUSE - UPSTAIRS HALLWAY - CONTINUOUS

Daphne's upper body is in the hallway.

DAPHNE
When I realized I wasn't dreaming or dead, I kept trying it more and more.

ALICIA
That's pretty cool.

INT. SCHOOL - ART CLASS - MORNING

Daphne peers around the classroom, no one is looking. Daphne steps through the wall into a courtyard.

DAPHNE (O.S.)

My art class has a small courtyard next to it. This one time, well maybe two times, I thought I'd be all high-and-mighty by walking through the wall when no one was looking. I went right through then fell three feet down to the ground.

IMAGE: Daphne on the ground outside her art class.

EXT. BARON - GARDEN - AFTERNOON

Alicia is sitting aside Daphne who is FLICKING sunflower seeds.

ALICIA

I bet if you showed everyone that you could walk through a wall, they wouldn't call you crazy.

DAPHNE

They'd call the police to take me away. The government would make me a lab rat and the zoo would give me a place to live as I get older so that people can visit me in a cage. I can't live in a zoo! It wouldn't work for this girl!

Alicia laughs as she holds Daphne's hair clip at eye level; twisting it in the air.

ALICIA

You gave me this clip. Bet you didn't know how special it is.

Daphne stare at Alicia, then the hair clip, then Alicia. She slides away from Alicia the distance of a stone.

ALICIA (CONT'D)

At the park, I had it in my hair when we laid down. Something you should know about me. I can go back in time to when and where you wore it on your head. I can see what you saw; I can hear what you say; and remember what happened.

ALICIA (CONT'D)

I saw our conversation in your room from your eyes when you walked right through the door. I was a little afraid that we'd run into the door, but you walked right through it. Surprise! I, Alicia Averys, am a mind traveler. Been one since I can remember. So it's your call cousin. Can you sit next to a mind traveler?

DAPHNE

No. I'm appalled and about to leave because of you.

Daphne starts to push herself up, then sits back down.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

I got you good with that one. Perhaps, next time you enter my mind, you could give me a warning. Since I've already got enough broken gears up there, I don't need someone messing with what I still have working. So what'cha been using your powers for? I know what I'd use them for, but I want you to go first.

ALICIA

How humble? Since we're cousins, that last move you did, tricking me by walking away, was mean. Not the good kind of mean either.

DAPHNE

Is there a good kind of mean?

ALICIA

That's beside the point.

A quick moment of anxiety passes for Alicia, then she engulfs Daphne with her adventures and tales.

ALICIA (CONT'D)

I've been to a lot of places.

IMAGE CUT: ACRES Civil War with Howard; Ricky in the Sandlot.

DAPHNE

Most people don't want another voice in their mind. It's hard enough to keep my own thoughts in check.

Alicia nods in agreement.

ALICIA

I guess I do give everyone a split personality. Wonder if anyone else is like us?

DAPHNE

Don't know. I can do what I do. You can do what you do. Where the two mix

(pause)

Can we mix powers? I mean - can I go into a mind with you or you go through walls with me?

They stare blankly at each other, pondering Daphne's question and the possibility of enhancing their own abilities. If there is an answer, Alicia can't conjure it. Daphne sits smiling as the sun beams a light above her head.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

I've got an idea. Can't say it's a good one. But I've got one.

Daphne stands up and walks away from a stunned Alicia still sitting.

ALICIA

How about I just sit her until you are certain you have a GOOD idea. Not a possibly, maybe BAD idea.

INT. BARON HOUSE - LIVING ROOM - CONTINUOUS

Daphne has her ear against a wall. She taps the wall with her knuckle. His head shakes 'no' as she moves two steps down the wall. She puts her ear to the wall. Taps her knuckle to hear a HOLLOW sound.

ALICIA

This is bad idea. Is this really going to work?

DAPHNE

It always has for me. I've never tried it with anyone else. You're the first so I'm not certain about you.

ALICIA

I think that means me walking through a wall is a bad idea.

DAPHNE

So we grab hands, walk through the wall. At first, you will feel stone-cold, then a tingling needle sensation, then it will be pitch black. You ready.

ALICIA (V.O.)

No-

DAPHNE

You didn't say now.

Alicia frustrated that her SELF-TALK was silent stands SPEECHLESS. Daphne grabs Alicia's hand, then step into the wall. Daphne and Alicia hand, forearm disappear.

ALICIA

I can't handle this.

Daphne POPS her head back into the living room. Daphne smiles, nods her head to go.

DAPHNE

Let's go!

ALICIA

Too late to stop now, better just jump in. Let's go! Come on! Legs, why aren't you listening, lift and drive!

Daphne YANKS Alicia through the wall.

INT. BARON HOUSE - LADDER SHAFT ROOM - CONTINUOUS

An OLD LADDER ROOM of four feet square and two stories high with a single WOODEN ladder on one side.

A light shines onto the wood floor. It swivels up against the wall, casting shadows higher towards the ceiling. Alicia's eyes adjust.

ALICIA

Tiny place. Why is there a ladder?

DAPHNE

Don't know exactly. It runs from the attic to the basement. Found a lot of papers and a few pictures and barrels in the attic. Not certain what was in the barrels and dad didn't really care.

Daphne turns her key chain down towards the floor.

IMAGE: Daphne and Alicia still holding hands.

 DAPHNE (CONT'D)
How are you coping with the cold?

 ALICIA
Just a shiver or two.

 DAPHNE
Good. Are you breathing. I don't usually breathe when I do this stuff.

Alicia is PERPLEXED.

 ALICIA
That's a need to know BEFORE doing!

 DAPHNE
I did know. You're the one who didn't.

 ALICIA (V.O.)
Lord have mercy.

 DAPHNE
Can you grab the ladder and see who used it?

 ALICIA
No. Objects like this or stone walls have never worked for me. It usually has to be personal objects, things that have some meaning. I just do what I do and walla. I'm in another person's mind.

 DAPHNE
Walla ... just like that.

Boom! Boom! Boom!

 DAPHNE (CONT'D)
Sounds like Trevor is home. He always runs up the stairs and they're right next to us. I can take a look into the living room to see if anyone else is here.

Daphne turns and leans her head through the wall.

ALICIA (V.O.)

I'm not going to get used to that, seeing her headless body just standing there with her feet on the ground.

Daphne pulls her head back into the room.

DAPHNE

No one's there. It should be clear for us to go out and try some of the mind traveling things.

ALICIA

What?

DAPHNE

Well, what else do you want to do?
You need something to use for the mind-travel, a watch, ring or something. You can try to enter a famous person's mind.

Alicia and Daphne stare at one another.

Boom! Boom! Boom!

Daphne peeks her head back out of the room.

ALICIA

Alright. If I'm in Savannah-

Daphne peeks her head back in.

ALICIA (CONT'D)

Where can we get information about the Riverfront Exchange?

DAPHNE

(instantaneously) Library.

(pause)

I should probably wash my mouth out with soap after suggesting the library during Summer vacation.

(pause)

Let's go.

Daphne YANKS Alicia out of the room.

INT. BARON HOUSE - KITCHEN - MORNING

Beep! Beep! Beep! The TIMER on the OVEN flashes ZERO.

Jolene, with the phone on her shoulder pulls the oven door down and reaches in for the roast. She pulls it out of the oven and sets it down on the stove top. A slip of her hand and the oven mitt is off and resting in the water. She handles the food as she continues her conversation on the phone.

JOLENE

Not cool. I dropped the oven mitt in the water. So how much fun are you and the boys having in Orlando?

RACHEL (O.S.)

I'm loving it.

JOLENE

Did you do the two hundred foot elevator drop?

RACHEL (O.S.)

No. I did the stand on the ground while other people did that.

Jolene takes her seat at the breakfast nook. She sips a cup of coffee, taking in the aroma, as she listens to Rachel on the phone.

RACHEL (O.S.) (CONT'D)

Kyle and I are going to dinner tomorrow night!

JOLENE

What are you doing with the kids?

RACHEL (O.S.)

You want to babysit.

JOLENE

Um, let me think. No. One of yours and two of mine for a week is enough. Especially since you're taking my girl for a few weeks.

RACHEL (O.S.)

Think she'll be surprised?

JOLENE

She talks about going back to visit. It'll be fun telling Daphne she's going to Pennsylvania. We'll figure out how to tell her when you get back to Savannah.

INT. SAVANNAH PUBLIC LIBRARY STAIRS - NOON

CLOSE ON: Alicia and Daphne walk on old wooden stairs. Creek!
Crack! Creek! Crack! Creek! Crack!

DAPHNE

Is it safe walking up here?

Daphne glances over the stair railing. She sees dusty tops of the BOOKCASES stretching across the main floor. Her eyes stop at the far side wall with a mural of 'The First Baptist Church' on Bull Street.

ALICIA

This is where the librarian says to go. It's the archives. It's not that bad.

INT. SAVANNAH PUBLIC LIBRARY ARCHIVES - CONTINUOUS

Alicia stops abruptly at the top step to take in a full look at the archives. A circular window shines light across the green cabinet. Wooden tables fit for three people per side separate each display of model buildings.

ALICIA

Well, maybe it is. But we're here for a reason, might as well finish. Oh and don't tell my brothers we went to the library. That will just cause trouble on the way home, bragging about being on a safari with wild animals while we're hunting for books in a library.

DAPHNE

What's that?

Alicia is examining a CARD CATALOG. She pulls a drawer to see a row of INDEX CARDS.

ALICIA

It's index cards.

Daphne and Alicia examine the FOREIGN cards. Daphne loses interest and moves on.

ALICIA (CONT'D)

How long is this place open because this is going to take all vacation.

Daphne taps on a LONG GLASS CASE.

DAPHNE

Before you quit, we could look over here.

Daphne leans down and stares at a display. The nameplate, Riverfront Preserve, is etched onto the glass. Inside, a series of pictures and books about the THREE FOURTEEN.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

Guess this is why the librarian sent us up here. She said what we're looking for will be here. Only one problem-

Daphne taps the LOCK on the glass.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

I'll go ask her to open this up so we can get started.

Daphne walks back towards the stairs.

Creek! Crack! Creek! Crack!

Int. SAVANNAH PUBLIC LIBRARY ARCHIVES - Moments Later

Alicia and Daphne are sitting at CIRCULAR DESK covered with books covered in DUST. The papers are enclosed in PLASTIC.

ALICIA

I doubt anyone has looked at these in years.

DAPHNE

What makes you think that? The layers of dust; spider carcasses; or the tumbleweed that just rolled past us.

Daphne attempts to blow dust off the books. She tilts back her seat as she DANGLES a book in the air.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

Dust shouldn't make a second cover to a book. Can you use any of them?

Alicia scans the layout of the table.

ALICIA

I don't know. The dates seem newer than the time of the ship.

(MORE)

ALICIA (CONT'D)
 I can try, but it will be a little weird, might travel into the mind of a person from the 1960s. Not really what I'm looking for.

Daphne and Alicia start THUMBING through the books.

TIME PASSES with NO success.

ALICIA (CONT'D)
 (singing to herself)
 Oh where, oh where is my little time-traveling-device gone. Oh where, oh where can you be.

DAPHNE (O.S.)
 Alicia.

ALICIA (V.O.)
 I need something better. I can't use these.

DAPHNE (O.S.)
 Alicia.

ALICIA (V.O.)
 This is hopeless and I'm in a library during Summer break. Sigh to my life.

SCREECH. The table screeches the FLOOR. Alicia tilts her eyes up to Daphne who has a FRUSTRATED look. She holds a small book in her hand.

DAPHNE
 Got the needle. Well book thing, but it may work.

Daphne turns to book around to read the INSIDE COVER PAGE.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)
 To my beloved wife of twenty-three years, Mary. Love Arlington.

ALICIA
 Doesn't mean I can use a book. It could have been written by someone with nothing, literally less than nothing to do in life. I've got experience with that breed of people.

Daphne leans over and hands the book to Alicia.

DAPHNE

This is an itty-bitty three-inch book of Bible verses. A copy is in every preacher's utility belt. This may not be Goldilocks's bed, but what other choice do we have? Take the chance or go home.

Alicia slides the Bible in-front of her. Its binding barely hangs on by the original threads. Wearing a half-smile, Alicia eyes roll from the book to Daphne.

ALICIA

It's not really going to be that exciting.

DAPHNE

What no fireworks, signal flares, out-of-body signs.

ALICIA

Nope. I'm just going to sit here, close my eyes and it's off to another mind. You're going to be bored.

DAPHNE

That's alright. I only have to be here till you close your eyes. Then I can leave you here. All alone and by yourself.

Alicia is not amused.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

Joking. I'll have dad come up here if I have to go anywhere. He's just down there reading next to the fireplace.

Alicia holds the book tight as she closes her eyes. Daphne exhales and looks up to the ceiling which is decorated with panels displaying the STARS and CONSTELLATIONS. She notices LIBRA.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

That's my sign. Nothing better in heaven than me.

EXT. SAVANNAH STREETS - BAY STREET - AFTERNOON

Year 1873

CLOSE ON: A Pocket watch reads a quarter past two.

INTO VIEW: A set of FOUR HORSES pull a wagon of SOUTHERN PINE TREES. The clickity-clackity hoofs. The RIDER (worn, 30s) tips his cap as he passes an MRS. ARLINGTON (50s, slender, well-dressed).

ALICIA (V.O.)

Almost got run over by a real mustang. Not the Ford kind.

Mrs. Arlington crosses the Cobblestone STREET. She glances up at the 1870 skyline of BRICK BUILDINGS. PEOPLE make their way through town. A GIRL, in tow of her FATHER, just three steps ahead of Mrs. Arlington Stops, glances up at a sign 'Bay Street.'

Ms. Arlington steps UP on the street, greeted by PREACHER (60s with a grand smile) to her left.

PREACHER

Ain't movin' too fast today Mrs.
Arlington

MRS. ARLINGTON

Maybe the trip is God's gift for you. If you have no reason to run, then take time and enjoy the sights. God gave us Earth to enjoy.
Pardon my leave father. Till Wednesday night when we meet in church.

Mrs. Arlington bids farewell to the Preacher. She manures around manure on the path, side-steps the broken steps and starts parallel to the street shops.

ALICIA (V.O.)

This place looks different from when Bay Street in my day.

ARTHUR (O.S.)

Mary! Mrs. Arlington! Maam! I've got bad news!

Mrs. Arlington notice ARTHUR (40s, disheveled) speed-walker towards her position.

MRS. ARLINGTON

Arthur. Running round with your head cut off like usual.

Mrs. Arlington stares at the lesser man and scoffs as his worn shoes.

MRS. ARLINGTON (CONT'D)
Does yelling ever get you what you want? Does it make other men move quicker or faster? Not gonna move me.

ARTHUR
Maam.

MRS. ARLINGTON
Horses moving to ensure the ratings are right. And they are right because we've got quality timber and quantity that others can't match. Are you putting a damper on this morning Arthur?

ALICIA (V.O.)
That was rude.

ARTHUR
It's not me that's making this a bad day. The Three-Fourteen came to shore this morning. I'm sorry. Not my choice in stories to tell.

ALICIA (V.O.)
Arthur you are amazing! Hallelujah Daphne! God bless the pocket bible! Daphne knew it'd be part of the Southern Super Hero safety belt. It took me 9 mind trips to narrow this down.

Mrs. Arlington bites her lip as the sound of a winded Arthur. She waits, impatiently for Arthur to continue.

MRS. ARLINGTON
Since your no longer of use to me, I'll meet the crew myself.

ALICIA (V.O.)
Wow! You're a bit of a jerk, but your mind is my tour guide. Take to the ship that sailed the seven seas. Onward go!

EXT. SAVANNAH STREETS - BAY STREET - MOMENTS LATER

Mrs. Arlington's steps are slower than her preceding steps. Her hand holds the BLACK IRON RAILING. She glances up at the men on the iron catwalk. Arthur is just behind on the stairs.

He hustles to Mrs. Arlington's side as she enters the cobblestone road.

ARTHUR

You don't have to be here maam.

ALICIA (V.O.)

She does.

MRS. ARLINGTON

Yes. Arthur I do. God has a plan, even if I don't know it. There is one.

ANGLE ON: Arthur and Mrs. Arlington are flanked on the side by RED BRICK WALLS. The riverfront of SAVANNAH is in-front of them. The cobblestones FLOW to the RIVER BANK. They approach the corner riverfront as the SUN SHINES bright across the water. They turn the corner to the left and STOP.

INTO VIEW: The THREE FOURTEEN (1860s, sailboat, ornate) is torn and tattered. MAST is broken and impaling the deck. BOARDS splinter out in the wrong direction.

CLOSE ON: Mrs. Arlington's hand rubs across the wood of the ship's side. Lifting gently to avoid the four-inch pieces of wood that are splintering from the planks. She closes her eyes, still no tears, then takes a step back for a better view of a ship. Moving towards the bow, a tangle of iron strips are split through the cabin.

Those are the keel supports. My husband, growing up, used to melt the iron for ships like this. 'Curve the metal and pound the shape,' he'd say. He loved the sea and the land. Never get me on one of these things less we just have to cross the river. Even then, I don't care for the water too much.

ARTHUR

Do you need to sit down Mrs. Arlington. You look a bit like a ghost, being all white.

MR. MILLIMONT (O.S.)

Mary!

Mrs. Arlington looks left to see MR. MILLIMONT (50s, portly, well-dressed) quickly walking to her side.

MR. MILLIMONT (CONT'D)
Mary. I know you can hear me.

MRS. ARLINGTON
I know I can hear you too.
(pause)
I also know a more humble man wouldn't feel the need to yell when you are only three paces to my left. Did you think I didn't see you? Did you think that I couldn't smell you at this close distance?
The only sense that didn't alert me to your presence is the one of touch. That's one, that you will never feel, if you understand my tone. I suspect you understand my tone.

Mr. Millimont struggles to bite his tongue, but he does.

MR. MILLIMONT
Clear as water Mary.

MRS. ARLINGTON
Water's not always clear. So your comment doesn't always make sense does it.

ALICIA (V.O.)
Forget tolerance! You are just mean to the core. Not a good bone in your body.

MR. MILLIMONT
No. This isn't a place for you today Mary. Despite the bite in your tongue, I know you. Known your family for a long time. I'm either taking you home. Or-

MRS. ARLINGTON
-Or. This ship is taking room from good ones. The ones that make money and move merchandise. We have timber to sell and that's all I sell. My employees are outside the city and only two, two with me inside the city. Only place this ship can move to is the bottom of the river. Maybe the Yankees should tug it down to Fort Pulaski and sink it. Or take it back up North.
(MORE)

MRS. ARLINGTON (CONT'D) Probably better looking than the ships in Philadelphia's harbor.
 Ain't nothing worth any value
 there.

Mrs. Arlington turns away from the ship and continues ALONG the Riverfront. The red bricks REACH far above her FRAME. Mr.
 Millimont trails Mrs. Arlington.

ALICIA (V.O.)
 You've got a temper. I don't like your snarky tone. But, I agree about the ship. It can't be worth much in this condition.

MR. MILLIMONT
 It's worth a few dead bodies!

Mrs. Arlington STOPS.

MR. MILLIMONT (CONT'D) Ship was blown in without any living captain or crew. I hope you don't mind my candor and I know it's impolite to say this to a woman, but we've known one another for many years. You are a miserable old crow.

Mrs. Arlington CONTINUES her walk.

MR. MILLIMONT (CONT'D)
 I'll get someone to move it. I raised a boy who was on the Three Fourteen! You raised a boy who was on the Three Fourteen! The bodies are in the Exchange, then they will go into the ground. I'm not going to fight with you here. Not, where our sons died!

Arthur pats a teary-eyed Mr. Millimont as Mrs. Arlington turns away from the water towards the BREAK in the red bricks.

ANGLE ON: A set of stairs FLANKED by four-stories of red-brick WALLS. Mrs. Arlington starts to walk, each step is a hesitation as TEARS wall between her eyes.

DOLLY OUT: A single glass door in the red brick wall.
ARLINGTON TIMBER. Mrs. Arlington's hand grabs the handle. She holds. Her reflection shows the PAIN. A deep sigh to RELEASE the empathy.

INT. ARLINGTON TIMBER OFFICE - CONTINUOUS

The glass door pane RATTLES to a DIM lite office. Port windows display an OVERCAST setting. A full wall FIREPLACE is complemented by TWO SMOKEING CHAIRS. The oak floor LEADS to LARGE DESK in the center with TIFFANY (20s, pretty female) and POLICE OFFICER 1 (20s, handsome) STOP and stare at Mrs. Arlington.

MRS. ARLINGTON

Attention! I will grant a two-hour unpaid leave to everyone. It starts now and I expect each of you to return to the proper amount of time. Tiffany, who's in charge here?

ALICIA (V.O.)

Oh my God! Why are you so mean?-

Tiffany and Police Officer 1 point towards a small OFFICE ROOM to the right. Mrs. Arlington STEPS ECHO off the oak floors as she walks towards the OFFICE ROOM. She steps past the threshold, looks up.

INT. ARLINGTON OFFICE ROOM - CONTINUOUS

THREE OFFICERS (30s) in UNIFORM stand warily in the corner of the room. Mrs. Arlington gives them a GLARE then looks down. TWO SAILORS (18s) and SAMUEL ARLINGTON (20s) lay in UNIFORM (cotton white with blue stripes). The sailors pale skin is wrinkle as a PRUNE; belts and pants are torn; and blood on their shirt.

OFFICER 1 takes off his police CAP, steps towards Mrs. Arlington to talk.

OFFICER 1

I suppose miss, you wish to be in charge. I say that from personal observation and expectations of your family.

Mrs. Arlington pauses, scans the room from one officer to the next officer.

ALICIA (V.O.)

I don't want to be in charge. We need Sherlock Holmes or Poirot. How'd they die.

MRS. ARLINGTON
You'd be right. I want these villains out of my Exchange. I want them out two hours ago-

OFFICER 1
-No one knows how they got into the exchange.

MRS. ARLINGTON
-Don't care-

OFFICER
We'd like-

MRS. ARLINGTON
Did you hear what I said?

OFFICER 1
Do you know their names?

Mrs. Arlington stares at Samuel Arlington.

(annoyed)
No sense keeping the dead in such poor company. Not profitable. You paid for their excursion.

MRS. ARLINGTON
I pay for some things, but I don't pay for these interruptions. They are beyond my help.

CLOSE ON: Officer 1 rises on his tippy toes to see into Mrs.
Arlington's eyes.

You turn your back on too many people Mary- even your own son.
Perhaps some of these fellas have families that care.

Officer 1 lowers himself down, he smirks, then pivots to leave the room.

Let's get the carts.

The remaining Police Officers walk out of the room.

ANGLE ON: Mrs. Arlington stares at the bodies, she closes her eyes as Tiffany enters INTO VIEW behind Mrs. Arlington.

TIFFANY

Mrs. Arlington
(hesitation)
I know you said to leave, but -

MRS. ARLINGTON

But you didn't listen.

Mrs. Arlington pivots around to face Tiffany then starts to walk towards the fireplace. Mrs. Arlington keeps her eyes on Tiffany.

MRS. ARLINGTON (CONT'D)

They better not stain my floor.
Costs money to clean. I won't pay for it, that's for certain.
Tiffany! When you come back you'll have some cleaning to do!

Tiffany SMILES then rushes TOWARDS the door. Mrs. Arlington sits in the seat ASIDE the fireplace. She closes her eyes, hears the GLASS on the door RATTLE.

INT. SAVANNAH PUBLIC LIBRARY ARCHIVES - AFTERNOON

Daphne taps her phone. She eyes roll up to see Alicia sitting across the table. Alicia's eyes are TWITCHING.

DAPHNE

That's new. I am still doubting this. I've already been told by the Librarians that I'm causing a ruckus. Humpf. If they want a ruckus, I'll put fiction books in the non-fiction section. That'll be a calamity.

INT. SAVANNAH PUBLIC LIBRARY ARCHIVES - CONTINUOUS

Daphne leans her head on the table. She senses Alicia returning but waits to look.

DAPHNE

Bout time, what'd you see?

Alicia yawns, stretches and SMILES at her return to the present.

ALICIA

Scarecrows, ghosts and goblins.
Joking. I was in Savannah and saw a broken ship.

DAPHNE
 (hopeful)
The Three Fourteen?

 ALICIA
Yeah.

 DAPHNE
Awesome. I had full confidence.
Must be nice being able to go right where you want to be.

 ALICIA
Not exactly. I try to think of what I want and eventually I get there.
Pieces of the ship were shredded and laying on the deck. Clothes, pipes, and food were strewn everywhere. I could have explored more, but the body I was in didn't go that way.

 DAPHNE
So close. Do you know how they died? Who died? Are they the ghosts?

 ALICIA
No. Nein. No idea. I do know this Mrs. Arlington is as mean as a jackal without the laugh.

 DAPHNE
I was hoping you'd know everything so we can continue with our vacation.

 ALICIA
We can, but-

 DAPHNE
-but-

Alicia shows the BIBLE at eye level.

 ALICIA
This isn't going to get us any good answers.

Daphne and Alicia sit in silence for a moment, then Daphne smiles a 10!

DAPHNE

I've got an idea. We just need to take pieces of the Three Fourteen from the exchange. They won't miss it. We'd borrow it for a few days. Unless it did belong to the ghost, then I'm keeping it. I'd sell it online. Authentic Ghost Clothes. Tell me that wouldn't make money.

ALICIA

That wouldn't make money.

ALICIA (V.O.)

I need to put an end to this. It'd be fun.

ALICIA

Your mom's not taking us back there so I guess we'll never know.

DAPHNE

Oh, she'll take us.

Daphne slides her phone and starts typing. As she is typing -

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

I've got mum figured out. She'll let us go. Frame a good prose and boom. Exchange here we come.

ALICIA

What could you tell her to take us to the same place? We were just there.

DAPHNE

Easy. I told mum you, Ms. Alicia, wants to go back. You're the guest. She'll do it.

PING. Daphne sets the phone down. Daphne leans back into the chair and relaxes.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

Give it a minute.

PING.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

Or five seconds.

Daphne picks up the phone.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)
 Success! Let's get dad and get out of this place. Its nice during school, but not in Summer.

Alicia and Daphne get up from the table. They start to clean the table and put the MATERIALS back.

EXT. RIVERFRONT EXCHANGE - EVENING

Riverfront is set for the night (lampposts, lite up signs).
 Everyone is dressed for a BRISK LATE SPRING NIGHT. Alicia glances up to see Daphne balancing on top of the trolley tracks.

 ALICIA (V.O.)
 Trolley lanes are definitely better to step over than carriage lanes.
 Too much manure from the horses.
 Roses weren't smelling like roses.

Alicia glances up at the lite up windows in the Riverfront Exchange.

 ALICIA
 Ready to do this?

Daphne dismounts the curb.

 DAPHNE
 Nope-

Daphne looks at Jolene who is walking with hand held with Eli. Trevor is a few steps in-front.

 DAPHNE (CONT'D)
 Thanks mum for setting this up. We greatly appreciate the opportunity to have dinner in such a wonderful establishment.

Jolene stops, releases Eli's hand and glares at Daphne

 JOLENE
 I don't know what you are up to, but don't do it. Oh and hint, when you talk all prim-n-proper, it's a give away that something is up. I know you well enough to know better.

CLOSE ON: Trevor smiles at the HOSTESS 2 (20s, female). The hostess scans the reservation list with a pen. She glances up.

HOSTESS 2
We've got a five to ten minute wait to get the booth.

Hostess 2 grabs a BUZZER from the BASKET. She hands it to Trevor who hands the buzzer to Eli.

TREVOR
Small weight-

ELI
I'll break it.
(glances around) Daphne. You can hold it.

Eli hands the buzzer to Daphne. Eli and Trevor leave the hostess stand. Eli smiles to Jolene.

ELI (CONT'D)
I think it's got the range for us to cross the street and relax.

Eli leads group towards the WATER on the Riverfront. He stops and stares at the BOBBING docks. He glances at the water.

ELI (CONT'D)
Water's moving fast.

ANGLE ON: Eli glances at the CONVENTION CENTER across the river. The Center is lite up like a CHRISTMAS TREE in June.

ELI (CONT'D)
Wonder what's going on there?

Trevor steps to Eli's side to confidently respond to Eli.

TREVOR
It's the national conference for the Technology Students something-or-other. Jeremy is going. They build things like model houses and computer programs.

ELI
I remember building rockets and planes back in the day. The rockets usually exploded in the air and the model planes never did look like they were supposed to on the box.

Daphne taps Trevor on the shoulder. Trevor ignores. Daphne, frustrated, interrupts the talking by tapping Eli's back.

DAPHNE

We've been buzzed! Bit sooner.

Daphne holds up the red blinking buzzer, turns and walks to join Jolene and Hostess 2.

INT. RIVERFRONT EXCHANGE - CONTINUOUS

Hostess leads the party into the restaurant. They maneuver in between and around the full-house of patrons with tables of tourists in argyle; a group of teenagers with a stressed chaperone; and too many people dressed for a local Anime festival.

INT. RIVERFRONT EXCHANGE - 2ND FLOOR - CONTINUOUS

Alicia takes a moment to scan the room from the top step. Everything is as it was the prior time. She follows towards the same booth seat. She tops to look at the CAPTAINS WHEEL that is set on the wall for the Three Fourteen MURAL.

CLOSE ON: Alicia and Daphne are staring closely at the mural.

DAPHNE

I can slip my hand behind the glass, not too far, but good enough to grab the knife.

ALICIA

You'll get tetanus if you touch that.

DAPHNE

Good point.

Daphne leans back, then steps back. She nods her head to take in the mural, then smiles to Alicia.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

You need something from the ship. Does that mean you need the whole piece or can you do the mind thing with only a piece of something, like a thread from the shirt or a splinter from the pipe?

ALICIA (V.O.)

Great question. I have no idea.

ALICIA
Of course I can. Easy-peasy.

Alicia and Daphne take in the mural view. Jolene stares at Daphne who is using her HANDS to measure parts of the mural.

JOLENE
Ladies, do you want to order? I'd like to eat tonight.

Daphne and Alicia walk to the table.

DAPHNE
Just looking mum. Nothing else.
I'll probably just have the usual.

TREVOR
You've never been usual.

Eli laughs at Trevor's joke. Jolene's glare to her husband results in his silence. Daphne and Alicia take their seats as the WAITRESS 1 (30s, black outfit) takes the orders.

DAPHNE
I'll take whatever mum ordered.

ALICIA
Same for me.

IMAGE CUT: A table set of SOUTHERN COMFORT FOOD (fried chicken, shrimp scampi, biscuits, grits, lemon loaf, collard salad, glasses of LEMONADE). Each person at the table takes in the WONDERFUL view and aroma of food.

INT. RIVERFRONT EXCHANGE - 2ND FLOOR - MOMENTS LATER

Eli stands aside the table. Trevor is already standing as Daphne and Alicia begin to exit the booth.

ELI
How was the ice cream, kids?

Eli's questions gets a 10 from the children. He scans the table full of EMPTY ICE CREAM plates. Jolene's head is rolling from side to side. Jolene's BRAIN FREEZE is setting in.

ELI (CONT'D)
Silly lady.

JOLENE

Don't laugh, it's not funny -

ELI

Oh, it's very funny from where I'm sitting because I am out of punching range. Brain freeze. Let's walk it off before the rain rolls in.

Jolene struggles to her feet with a snarl towards the world.

JOLENE

If you understood and cared about my well-being. You'd wait a minute.

Eli steps aside as Jolene makes her SLOW way out of the booth seat. She staggers forward past Eli and Trevor. The three start towards the staircase.

CLOSE ON: Daphne stands, nose an inch from the glass and her hand sliding along the brick wall.

DAPHNE

Gotta make this quick. Make certain no one's looking and I'll make the move.

ALICIA

Given how silly this is, I hope no one is looking.

Alicia spins around and scans the area. Only one booth is full, past the stairs under the chandelier in the shape of a small sailboat. Tables along the wall are hit-and-miss with people, one with two patrons, a second table - empty; the third is taken by an older man whose computer is accompanying him this evening for dinner.

ALICIA (V.O.)

He needs a real date.

DAPHNE (O.S.)

Is it clear?

ALICIA

It is.

DAPHNE (O.S.)

Are you certain?

ALICIA

Would you rather look for yourself or trust me? We need to hurry.
Your parents are taking the first step on the stairs. If they turn around, they'll wonder where we're at.

CLOSE ON: Daphne examines her hand. A single splinter of a WOOD PIPE.

DAPHNE

It won't be noticed. Well, I'm good to go.

Daphne and Alicia scurry forward as Eli disappears down the steps. They maneuver around the tables and make their way down the steps.

INT. RIVERFRONT EXCHANGE - CONTINUOUS

Alicia and Daphne exit the stairs. Daphne presses herself up on her tippy toes.

DAPHNE

Dad's at the payment area. We're just behind them.

Alicia keeps to her cousin's side. They catch up to Eli at the register to pass him towards the outside with Jolene and Trevor.

EXT. RIVERFRONT EXCHANGE - CONTINUOUS

Daphne and her family quicken their pace. A glance up shows a PENDING RAINSTORM.

ALICIA (V.O.)

I hope we make it home before the rain.

ELI

We've got about a ten minutes until it rains.

TREVOR

The walk home is twenty minutes.

JOLENE

Remember who said we should drive.

ALICIA (V.O.)

Wasn't me.

ELI

We can make it. It's not that far.

CRACK! Thunder roars in the air.

ALICIA

How much further to get home?

DAPHNE

It doesn't matter. We're not going to make it before the rain starts. At least you've got sandals that handle the water. My boots were made for walking, not swimming.

The THUNDERSTORM begins to FALL.

INT. WISCONSIN MACHINE SHOP - EVENING

MICKEY (80s style, 24 years, female) dances, bobs in front of a RAINSTORM impacting the window. The song "NEVER GONNA GIVE YOU UP by RICK ASTLEY is playing in the background. Mickey places a WOOD PIPE in her mouth. She turns to see MICHAEL (40s, VIETNAM VET) is glaring at MICKEY.

ALICIA (V.O.)

I hope I don't get seasick

MICHAEL

Seriously Mickey, put the pipe down. I don't want trouble.

MICKEY

Trouble is the one thing, only thing I am good at. Dancing is close.

ALICIA (V.O.)

This isn't a ship! Oh my god-

MICHAEL

That's part of the order -

ALICIA (V.O.)

All that tossing was dancing.

Mickey leans forward and POINTS towards Michael.

MICKEY

It's only one item in the order. I won't break it.

MICHAEL

We have a set of forty replicas that go out tomorrow. Not thirty-nine. That needs to make it.

Michael is shaking his head in disdain at the defiance of Mickey.

ALICIA (V.O.)

Freaking serious...the pipe is a replica. This is such a waste of time. You are letting me down Ricky. The British Ricky, not Great Uncle Ricky. I'm out of here.

FADE TO BLACK.

INT. BARON HOUSE - DAPHNE'S ROOM - NIGHT

Daphne and Alicia are both in bed, neither can sleep as the clock TICKS and TOCKS. Daphne kicks off the sheets, tossing her 3rd pillow onto the pile of 2 pillows on the ground. Alicia glances at the mound of pillows.

ALICIA

Are you okay up there?

DAPHNE

I can't believe it's a replica. I mean, we risked a lot of trying to get that splinter. Where'd you say they were from.

ALICIA

I didn't. But it wasn't Savannah. That was for certain.

Daphne peeks her head over the mattress and looks at Alicia.

DAPHNE

I don't like this being so close to something, then nope! It's over.

ALICIA

You don't like a lot to things do you.

DAPHNE

Some things I do, others not so much. I don't like the awkward moment when I pass someone in the hall at school and have no idea where to look. Also, I don't like the face that stares at me from the window.

ALICIA

Wait-

Alicia rises from her bed, to be eye level with Daphne.

ALICIA (CONT'D)

Your neighbor stares at you?

DAPHNE

No. I think it's the ghost. Saw it in the top window across the courtyard.

ALICIA

Is it there now?

DAPHNE

No, that would be weird.

Daphne stops, smiles, then spins her feet to the ground and stands. As she makes haste towards the bedroom door.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

I have a brilliant idea.

ALICIA (V.O.)

I'm scared to say 'no.' Maybe I'll get lucky and she'll kick me out of the room.

ALICIA

What do you want to do.

DAPHNE

How about we look into our resident ghost? There are some things in the attic that were here when we moved in. Bet they aren't replica.

Daphne shimmies out of the room.

INT. BARON HOUSE - UPSTAIRS HALLWAY - CONTINUOUS

Daphne jukes and jives for no reason down the hallway. She rounds the hall and glances up the SECOND STORY STEPS leading to the ATTIC DOOR. She glances back to see a tired Alicia slowing yawning her way forward. Daphne doesn't wait and tip toes up the stairs. She grasp the DOOR HANDLE then walks into the near pitch black of the ATTIC.

Alicia turns the corner to see stairs, an open door and NO cousin.

ALICIA

A few steps up to a bad decision.
Even more steps back to a comfortable bed.
(amused)
Should be an easy decision.

Alicia walks up the stairs. She cringes as one board CREAKS. She enters the pitch black attic.

INT. BARON HOUSE - ATTIC - CONTINUOUS

Alicia stares into the dark attic. A narrow light enters from a covered window. The light revels nothing.

ALICIA (V.O.)

Great. Creepy attic. No light. Lost cousin. Just keeps getting better.

Daphne pulls the chain of a LIGHTBULB. The corner is lite up with Daphne, a few BOX, and a TRAVELING CHEST (leather, 2 feet by 4 feet long). Daphne is opening the box.

CLOSE ON: Daphne kneels at the trunk pushing its top off towards the wall. Using the light, she starts to shuffle through the items to find a good candidate for mind traveling. A city of black-and-white appears in a picture frame with a family of eleven sitting beside a wagon, some picking daisies while others peer up towards the sky. A necklace chain of brass with a medallion in the shape of a small heart dangling down.

DAPHNE

Will any of these work? Not certain what these are, but maybe it'll take you to Egypt.

Alicia stands over Daphne's shoulder to get a glimpse of the objects.

ALICIA

Not much of a competition. And I don't want to go to Egypt.

Daphne hands the medallion to Alicia who takes a seat on the wood floorboards. Alicia smiles at the details of the medallion.

ALICIA (CONT'D)

This should be fun. Wonder where I'll go. Only one way to find out.

DAPHNE

What are you doing?

(sassy)

Do you really think we're staying up here for this? You go off to another mind, while I stay up in this creepy, dark place by myself.
The wind is howling like a wolf.
No. No. No.

ALICIA

Thought you were brave-

DAPHNE

Are you brave enough to wake up here all alone because I will leave you. If the police find the bones of a Yankee in the attic, I'll say I was asleep.

CRACK! BOOM! A thunderstorm starts.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

I thought the rain was over.

ALICIA

It was over.

The girls glare at each other. With unspoken words, they skillfully shuffle towards the attic steps.

ALICIA (V.O.)

This is worse than a haunted house.
Oh wait it is a HAUNTED HOUSE.

Creak! Crack! Creak! Crack!

DAPHNE

Stop.

Alicia and Daphne stop walking.

Creak! Crack! Creak! Crack!

ALICIA (V.O.)
No one is up here except us and we're not walking. We're not talking..

A moment passes, then they make hast for the door.

INT. RIVERFRONT EXCHANGE - 2ND FLOOR HALLWAY - CONTINUOUS

Daphne and Alicia scurry down the attic stairs. They reach the bottom, Daphne annoyed, turns back to see the door open. She scurries back up, hand on the attic doorknob-

Creak! Crack! Creak! Crack!

Daphne shuts the door then returns to Alicia's side. The two make way down the hallway, turning right into Daphne's room.

INT. BARON HOUSE - DAPHNE'S ROOM - CONTINUOUS

Daphne is relieved to be back in her room and jumps into bed. Alicia stares at the medallion as she takes a seat on her bed.

DAPHNE
Well, that wasn't so bad.

ALICIA
We haven't gone anywhere yet.

Alicia lays down in bed as she examines the medallion held above her head.

ALICIA (CONT'D)
So what are you going to do while I'm gone.

DAPHNE
Sleep if possible. You can wake me up when you get back.

Daphne turns to Alicia.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)
Since you meddle in minds, I want you to promise to never do that to me. The last thing I need is another person adding their two cents to my conversation.

ALICIA
Are you afraid my two cents are worth more than what you have between your ears?

DAPHNE
No, well. No. Just promise. And have a good trip.

Daphne rolls over to go to bed. Alicia turns away, tucks the medallion in her hand then closes her eyes.

INT. BARON HOUSE - STAIRS - NIGHT

Baron House in the year 1920 with ornate TIME PERIOD chandeliers, woodworking, and stained-glass windows. A small foot in a child's slipper takes a step down the stairs.

ALICIA (V.O.)
I can barely see anything. There's barely any light.

CLOSE ON: A small hand cups the side of a flickering CANDLE.
A turn left to see a chandelier with two candle-lights and a line of soot rising to the ceiling.

ANGLE UP: A grown man (40s age, 1920s dress) walks past the child.

ALICIA (V.O.) (CONT'D) Either he's a giant or I'm in a tiny body. Wait, why are you looking down.

DAISY (6yrs old in 1920, Southern drawl) looks down at her DOLL that is on the stairs.

DAISY Bonner.

Daisy curtsys down to pick up Bonner the doll. She clasps it tight as she quickens down the stairs.

DAISY (CONT'D)
Why'd you fall Bonner? I didn't fall, nor should you.

INT. BARON HOUSE - MAIN HALL - CONTINUOUS

Daisy slides down the last steps, turns the corners. Her head meets the bottom of the PAINTINGS tacked to the wall.

INT. BARON HOUSE - KITCHEN - CONTINUOUS

DAPHNE

Papa!

DAISY'S MOTHER (30 years, born 1896) stops and turns to the startled Daisy who enters the kitchen. The woman kneels down to hug Daisy.

DAISY'S MOTHER

Papa's down in the tunnel. Don't want to go down there with the spooks and ghouls. Plus, the men are working and it can get dangerous.

ALICIA (V.O.)

Wait to scare the child. Tell her where Papa is at, but she can't go.

DAISY

Muma. Can I?

DAISY'S MOTHER

(pausing)

Give my love to your father. He won't be back up tonight. Too much to do.

Daisy's Mother escorts her to the basement stairs. She opens the door for Daisy, candle in hand, to walk down the dark stairs.

ALICIA

I can't even see the candle.

Daisy disappears into the darkness.

INT. BARON HOUSE - BASEMENT - CONTINUOUS

PITCH BLACKNESS. The candle raises in-front peering left then moving right. There is nothing.

DAISY

Papa!

ALICIA (V.O.)

I don't see anyone, anything, or

A GLIMPSE OF light cracks open through the stone wall. An old man peers out from the split in the wall. He smiles, then goes back into the wall.

Daphne rushes for the wall where the light shined.

ALICIA (V.O.) (CONT'D)
 You're going to run into a wall.
 Don't!

Daphne enters the crack into the wall, then disappears as the room fades to Pitch Black.

INT. BARON HOUSE - TUNNEL - CONTINUOUS

An OLD MAN (60s, 1870 born) sits in a rocking chair with the shine of light from a fireplace. A musty tunnel with LONG TABLE reaches from front wall to back. The roof is a curved top at Ten feet.

ALICIA (V.O.)
 This place is filthy. Papa needs to do some cleaning, and he should start with the dust on the furniture.

OLD MAN
 Little late. You should be in bed.

DAISY
 Bonner couldn't sleep either.

PAPA (O.S.)
 Bonner is the one that couldn't sleep.

Daphne looks right to see PAPA (33 years, born 1888) is worn, sweaty and dirty.

PAPA (CONT'D)
 You certain it wasn't you that couldn't sleep.

Daisy shakes her head NO. She smiles as she runs towards Papa. She stops, holds up Bonner. Papa takes Bonner and places him on the table. Papa sits down in a chair as Daisy takes a seat on his lap. Daisy focuses from Papa to the collection of barrels.

PAPA (CONT'D)
 Can you count all the barrels?

DAISY
 I can count to seven.

PAPA
Seven! Your uncle over there can only count to three. One. Two.
Three and he's done.

ALICIA (V.O.)
That's not going to get you far.

DAISY
One. Two. Three.

Daisy focuses closely on a TILTED BARREL.

DAISY (CONT'D)
Mum wouldn't like it if there was only three barrels.

PAPA
No. No she wouldn't like it. I wouldn't like it. The owners would like it.

Daisy steps onto the floor. She points to additional barrels.

DAISY
Five barrels. Six barrels. Seven barrels. That's as good as I got.
And you ain't getting more.

PAPA
I'll take it.
(turning to OLD MAN)
Let's get some food to make it through the night. Ole max over there-

Intercut: GUARD DOG is fast asleep.

PAPA (CONT'D)
-might throw a hissy-fit if he doesn't get something in his stomach.

OLD MAN
Humpf...I've been giving him jerky since before we got down here. I'll make certain he's fed before you.

Old man rocks back in his chair as Papa smirks with Daisy returning to Papa with a laugh of a CAREFREE child.

INT. BARON HOUSE - BASEMENT - MORNING

CLOSE ON: Daphne's eyes are closed, slow breathing. She is a foot from the STONE WALL. Alicia leans from a nearby chair toward Daphne.

ALICIA

You look nervous. You certain you want to do this?

DAPHNE

Of course I want to do this. Who doesn't want to walk through a solid wall into dirt.

ALICIA (O.S.)

Tunnel!

DAPHNE

Are you certain? Looks like solid rock?

ALICIA

Probably is solid rock. There are a few kinds, but you'll know if you hit it. I'll be safe in my seat.

Daphne pauses in place. Her hand touches the wall, ready, set.

ALICIA (CONT'D)

One second.

A frustrated Daphne turns to see Alicia rise from her seat, walk to the stairs, then pace the PATH of Daisy. Alicia stands aside Daphne.

ALICIA (CONT'D)

This is right. Waiting isn't going change if there's dirt back there.

Daphne exhales, shakes her head, then enters the wall.

INT. BARON HOUSE - TUNNEL - CONTINUOUS

A streak of light casts down at her feet. The light shines against a brown, filth ridden floor. The flashlight tilts up, stretching across the ground and spreading out to catch the side walls.

DAPHNE

This is definitely bigger than Alicia said. Maybe she's not good at guessing distance.

Daphne SLOWLY walks forwards on dusty stones. Cobwebs dangle from the ceiling half-way to the ground. Daphne moves along a bench that STRETCHES the length of the wall. Her finger swipes across the face plate of the clock that is set on the wooden table. Two swipes reveal the clock-hands stuck at a quarter past two. She continues to search the table, looking for remnants of the past and avoiding rotten boards and splinters.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

This place has been deserted for long than I've been alive. Alicia is going to love this.

Daphne twirls her flashlight around to show her path. She glances down to see her FOOTSTEPS leading from the wall. With some PIP in her steps, she makes her back through the SAME STONE WALL.

INT. BARON HOUSE - BASEMENT - CONTINUOUS

Daphne steps out of the wall.

DAPHNE

Adieu, to you. And what the?

Daphne sees Alicia asleep on the chair.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

Really. So this is my support system. A stuffed animal in the shape of a poodle would have been more intimidating!

Daphne walks to Alicia's side. Daphne NICELY taps Alicia's shoulder. Alicia swipes the AIR away. Daphne taps to the shoulder, nose, head and a pull of the left ear. Slowly, Alicia's eyes open and focus on the world.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

I stayed awake for your adventure in the library!

ALICIA

So you made it-

DAPHNE

Obviously. I'm not stuck in the dirt. Good of you to notice.

ALICIA

How is it on the other side?

Daphne, grabs the LANTERN (Battery light), stands up and yanks Alicia forward towards the wall.

DAPHNE

- You are about to find OUT.

Daphne and Alicia line up at the wall. Daphne turns to stare at Alicia's face.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

You ready-

As Alicia tries to answer, Daphne walks through the wall, pulling Alicia into the wall.

INT. BARON HOUSE - TUNNEL - CONTINUOUS

The flashlight shows TWO sets of footprints on the dusty ground. Specks of dust are in the air. Daphne turns on her lantern.

DAPHNE

This is so much better than my small flashlight.

ALICIA

Why didn't you use that last time?

Daphne eyes roll towards Alicia.

ALICIA (CONT'D)

Turn the light so I knock those rolling eyes out.

Alicia tilts a plate as it wobbles in the air. The plates painted SUNFLOWERS are worn, but visible. She catches the plate before it falls, breaks.

DAPHNE (O.S.)

What were they doing over here?

ALICIA

(shrugging shoulders)

I remember being in the girl's mind. Her Papa was over there, just past the cobwebs on the left.

(MORE)

ALICIA (CONT'D)

The old guy was about where you are currently standing. Then, barrels were over here. Wonder what they were using this place for?

DAPHNE

You know you're a little weird right? Borderline insane.

Daphne tracks the cobwebs from one wall to the next as she swings the lantern to her side. Light shimmers off each row of stone that leans in to support the curving ceiling. A hole UP into the roof appears in the ceiling.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

Alicia, can you take a look at the roof. Looks like a hole or something.

ALICIA

Let there be light and you will see what you seek.

DAPHNE

Let there be a water balloon to SMACK Alicia in the face.

ALICIA (V.O.)

I should tell Daphne what I think I see. It'd be mean to make her wait, but I think I'll take an extra moment. (pause) Alright, now I'm bored.

ALICIA

How about I hold your light too. Then you can get a good look.

Daphne hands Alicia the Lantern. Alicia smiles a 9. She sees her reflection in the Lantern, then glances at Daphne examining the roof.

DAPHNE

It can't go that high. The yard is above us.

ALICIA

It can if you think about what's in the yard.

DAPHNE

The only thing up there is grass, flowers and our lighthouse.

Daphne glances up at the ceiling, then Alicia, then back to the ceiling.

 DAPHNE (CONT'D)
Maybe instead of the light shining out of the lighthouse, the sunlight shines into the lighthouse and makes the tunnel as bright as day.

 ALICIA Or-

Alicia joins Daphne's side as they stare at the ceiling.

 ALICIA (CONT'D)
Could have been an air vent. I doubt the old guy bathed more than once a year. I couldn't smell him, but I could see odor rising from his clothes. Left a bad taste in my mouth.

 DAPHNE
You have the strangest stories.
Plus, (arms crossed)
I don't actually think we can breathe. I tried a test a long time ago which confirmed, about 25% - that I'm not breathing when I do this stuff.

Alicia resigns herself back to the desk. Alicia inspects papers and books that are on the desk. Some pages disintegrate at her touch while others contain nothing more than dust.

 ALICIA
It would be nice if the ghost left a diary or manual of how to haunt multiple houses. I'm thinking it may be a little more difficult than I originally thought. Plus-side, we found a tunnel. Minus-side, it's full of cobwebs and stuff I can't figure out.

 DAPHNE
 (frustrated giving up) There's nothing here! I mean why build the tunnel? Think this is where the ghost stays? Or travels from one house to the other? It makes a great hiding place? But,
 (MORE)

DAPHNE (CONT'D)
big butt! How'd I not figure the lighthouse out? I've been looking at it for years!

 ALICIA
Have you ever cleaned it. Have you ever picked it up and moved it.

 DAPHNE
No on both counts.

 ALICIA Remember. Ghosts don't have to build tunnels to hide.

 DAPHNE
How am I supposed to remember things I didn't know?

Alicia STEP paces towards the wall. Daphne stares at Alicia but doesn't move.

 ALICIA
The wall is too close. I remember Papa being further from the wall.

Daphne steps up and passes Alicia. Daphne looks at the Daphne in the eyes as Daphne pass by towards the wall.

 DAPHNE
Maybe there a trick entrance? Let's find out.

 ALICIA
Wait! It could be a trap. Have you ever seen Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom?

 DAPHNE
No-

 ALICIA
- James Bond in the motel room.

 DAPHNE
-No

 ALICIA
Goonies on the ship.

 DAPHNE
You watch too much television. I'm going for this.

Daphne steps through the wall as Alicia stares in amazement.

ALICIA
- So that's what it looks like from this angle.
(shrugs shoulders)
Better her than me.

INT. BARON HOUSE - TUNNEL - MOMENTS LATER

Alicia is sitting by herself with minimal sunlight in the room.

ALICIA (V.O.)
Where am I? Where no one can find me? The only company I have are the voices in my mind. I bet they are having a good conversation. I know I'm not. Nope. No one else is here. My god this is boring. Now I know why Patrick always brings games in his pocket.

Into View: Daphne appears two feet from Alicia's face. Taken back, Alicia's eyes quickly scan her cousin.

DAPHNE (V.O.)
Two arms and legs. Clothes clean.
Eyes drooping, probably from a lack of sleep.

Alicia adjusts her eyes from everything.

ALICIA
You were gone a very long time.
Well, kinda. I think it was a long time because you said time stops, but I am too confused to figure this out.

DAPHNE
Great question. I'll answer it later. Let's get moving.

Daphne steps to the side of Alicia and starts to walk down the tunnel. She stops her feet and holds her breath. A glance to Alicia with a wary 3 on her face. FOOTSTEPS echo.

ALICIA
There wasn't an echo when I was at school-

DAPHNE

- That's what I'll talk about later. We can leave the lantern her, just need to turn it off.

Daphne and Alicia walks towards the wall that they entered the room.

ALICIA

So, where'd you go?

DAPHNE

I went into the neighbor's house.

ALICIA

What did you see?

DAPHNE

The inside of the neighbor's house.
Well, the first room was outside the neighbor's house. The second room was in the neighbor's house.
And the rest is left for later.
Grab my hand.

Daphne steps to the side of Alicia and starts to walk down the tunnel. Her footsteps echo off the walls as if to the beat of a snare drum in an orchestra. She stops her feet and holds her breath. A glance to Alicia with a wary 3 on her face.

DAPHNE (CONT'D)

You probably shouldn't look back.
She might not want you to see her face.

Daphne steps through the wall, pulling Alicia's hand in.
